Spirited Away Review

By Miyazaki

Spirited away is about a ten year old girl named Chihiro. This is a very fantastic movie in terms of how creative it really is. It started off with chihiro and her family going to a new home. The dad takes a wrong turn and ends up in a blocked road. The main protagonist think the place is scary but her parents think otherwise. Once exploring the parents find a restaurant and turn into animals. This starts chihiro's journey.

Let me get you a little bit of behind the scenes.

Miyazaki had almost finished princess mononoke when he decides that he wants to do another project (that project being spirited away).They had a lot of disasters happening like the printer not working ,most of the important people didn't own a dog (I know that doesn't make sense),etc. They changed actors and character designs alot during the production. Some of the actors were confused visually causing for some hilarious translation. One time they even had to go to a vet.

Though after all that insanity they made spirited away and made it a classic.

Being japans most successful there was obviously a lot of praise.

The characters and locations were amazing. The acting was great.

It was just a good movie altogether..
