

CRITICAL RACE THEORY, CULTURALLY SUSTAINING PEDAGOGIES, AND ETHNIC STUDIES

9 A.M.-4 P.M. | JUNE 22, 23, AND 24, 2021

Washington Ethnic Studies Now in collaboration with the University of Oregon, with funding provided by the Educator Advancement Council, is offering a professional development series on critical race theory, culturally sustaining pedagogies, and ethnic studies during three class sessions to be offered virtually via Zoom scheduled from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. June 22, 23, and 24, 2021. Teachers will be provided with professional development units and a $1,000 stipend upon completion of the course and $200 in books and materials for the classroom. The course will be engaging and interactive. The goal across the three days will be to actively involve participants in the exploration of race and critical consciousness and to incorporate these new concepts into professional practice.

For more information and to apply contact:

Lillian Durán, Associate Dean of Academic Affairs

lduran@uoregon.edu | 541-346-2502

College of Education

