70's Trend is Back

The 70's trend is back, but with a twist. The new trend is called Bohemian. Bohemian is slightly different from the 70's look. There's not as much of patched denim, vests, or flower hopping children. It is more elegant and romantic. The dresses are more loose and flowy. There is a lot more lace involved. There are a lot of flowers in the hair, not the traditional band of fabric wrapped around the head. Most bohemian fashions are more than the 70's fashions. Each fashion is unique in its own way, and both are very popular today.

Khaki is Back?!

Khaki hit the runway almost 40 years ago! It's making a comeback in 2015. It is very popular again. It is a staple piece. The most common Khaki item is an army jacket. They can be found on the runway or on a stay-at-home mom! This jacket can go with a fancier jacket or just going out to lunch with your friends! If you don't want to wear a dress, but want something that is super easy for you, jumpsuits are for you. They can be dressed down or up. They are a staple for your spring wardrobe.

Ballerina Trend

Have you seen all the long tulle skirts lately? Have you thought that they looked like ballerinas? You were right! Well, sort of. Lots of designers are using ballerinas as their inspiration. Instead of ballet shoes however, the skirts are mostly paired with pumps, heels, or sandals. The ballerina trend tends to stay on the runway, but is making its way to everyday wear.

Kimonos

Kimonos are not just for Asian festivals anymore! They are a very stylish piece perfect for your spring wardrobe. The new kimonos are a little different from the traditional kimonos. They are usually made out of a thin material and are worn as a fashionable “jacket”. They can be worn as a swimsuit cover-up or just a pretty piece in your outfit. The kimono worn on the right is the more traditional kind. The one on the left is the newer version.

Nautical Not just for sailors!

The nautical look is hitting the runways. Oversized coats and yacht dresses are the main types of nautical fashion. They are also cute sailor outfits. They are mostly paired with cute boat shoes, such as Sperry's, and sandals,
