

iCarly (2007- 2012)

Cast: Miranda Cosgrove (Carly), Jennette McCurdy (Sam), Nathan Kress (Freddy), Jerry Trainor (Spencer), and Noah Munck (Gibby)

Director: Steve Hoefer

Synopsis: When Carly and her best friend Sam act funny at a school talent show audition, their friend Freddie records it and posts it online without telling them. After the video was posted people loved it and thought it was so funny, they decided to start a webshow called iCarly. While the three friends worry about other problems going on in life. Carly, Sam, and Freddie discover that they have also become online sensations on their show. The show features talent contests, funny videos, and random dancing. Carly lives in Seattle with her 26-year-old brother and guardian Spencer, and airs the show in a makeshift third-floor studio loft in their apartment.

Review: When iCarly started, I was only 2 ,but the show lasted so I could see it when I was older. I was so obsessed with icarly. I feel like it was a good show back then because it was something all younger kids can relate too.

While iCarly can be funny, it can also be sad and heartwarming. There are so many struggles and sad moments in the 7 seasons it was on air. There was also so many funny moments in the show. Every episode had something new and fun so you would always want to watch the next week.

Even my mom used to watch it and think it was funny. It had a large audience of all ages. There had good comedy that was not inappropriate so younger viewers could watch it. I even watch to this day.

I would rate icarly a 10/10. It is still a great show. It is so good that I have watched every episode multiple times. If you like funny shows that you can relate to then you would definitely like iCarly.